

MUTE

Global warming alarmists don't want you to read this.

Did you know that a recent national poll found only 34% of Americans believe global warming is man-made? Or that "cap and tax" regulation being considered by Congress would destroy over 1 million American jobs and increase an average family's energy bill by at least $1,500 a year?

You probably don't know these important facts because politicians, environmental advocacy groups, and the media routinely ignore and silence the scientists, economists, and other experts who say global warming isn't a crisis. In fact, a group of scientists called the Nongovernmental International Panel on Climate Change recently released a report which refutes, point-by-point, the very report that politicians are relying on to justify their massive new taxes.

Reporting false claims of impending "planetary emergencies" might sell more newspapers than telling the truth, but it's wrong.

Let's make global warming about the science again, not politics. Demand that elected officials and media stop hitting the mute button on truth.
